

Clintondale High School Announces It Has Been Named Among the Top 41 Innovative K–12 Schools in America by Noodle

Clintondale High School Listed As a Leading Public School in America, Achieving Measurable Results for Its Students

Clinton Township, Michigan – October 20, 2015 – Clintondale High School is proud to announce that it has been named one of the 41 Most Innovative K–12 Schools in America for its revolutionary approach to education. Created by Noodle, the most comprehensive website for education information and resources, the list of honored institutions features 41 top public, private, and charter K–12 schools that are inspiring students to love learning, and empowering teachers and administrators to create unparalleled educational opportunities.

“Clintondale High School is proud to be honored for the hard work of our educators and the achievements of our students,” said Greg Green, the district’s superintendent. “We believe each student deserves every opportunity to succeed, and we have designed a flipped classroom model around this belief. We are thrilled that the leaders at Noodle recognize the impact that Clintondale High School is making on educational experiences and outcomes.”

“This year’s top 41 institutions exemplify new ways of addressing educational challenges and encouraging students to thrive,” said Suzanne Podhurst, Editor-in-Chief of Noodle. “All of the featured schools are making a demonstrable impact on the students they serve — and on the larger education space. At Noodle, we are shining a spotlight on the schools that are redefining education and creating exciting opportunities for their students.”

Clintondale High School is among 140,000 K–12 schools in the U.S. It was selected by Noodle experts, who culled the 41 most interesting, innovative, and impactful institutions from among tens of thousands of excellent schools.

“Innovative schools are about opportunities rather than problems, regardless of circumstances,” said John Chubb, president of the National Association of Independent Schools. “Educators who work in innovative schools envision an ideal future and then pioneer approaches to learning, teaching, and community-building that other schools can try out in their own settings. The schools recognized through the Innovative Schools Award show that experimenting and taking calculated risks to serve their students more effectively improves education for all children.”

Clintondale High School received an award from Noodle, along with other materials to showcase the designation as an Innovative School.
